The color of the Co Q10 - 100 mg soft gel capsules that your market is receiving will be different in color than the previous material. The new soft gels will be redder and less brown in color.

The color change is due to changing the color of the material that was added to the soft gel capsule itself. This new color is more stable and will provide a better experience to the customer. The CoQ10 material that is inside the soft gel is the same material it has been in the past and customers will continue to receive the same or better benefits as before.
